

SHERMAN COLLEGE of CHIROPRACTIC

INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH
AND PHILOSOPHY SYMPOSIUM

Call for Abstracts

Platform and Poster Presentations

Sherman College of Chiropractic will host the 17th Annual International Research and Philosophy Symposium (IRAPS), a peer-reviewed chiropractic conference that addresses vertebral subluxation research and philosophy of chiropractic.

The goal of IRAPS 2020 is to bring leaders in philosophy and research together, along with practitioners and educators centered on vertebral subluxation practice, to build a stronger academic community worldwide regarding the subluxation model of chiropractic. Our intent is to foster a view that the chiropractic profession is:

- Centered on vertebral subluxation
- Based on vitalism
- Dedicated to research
- Developing a discipline of philosophy

Topic examples for this year's abstracts, both for platform and poster presentations, may include:

- Case studies that focus on the location, analysis and correction of vertebral subluxation (LACVS)
- Philosophy of chiropractic as a component of LACVS type care
- Scholarly pursuits that will advance chiropractic education, practice and the profession

Submission and conference registration:

- Email the abstract and presenter CV in MS Word format (see guidelines next page) to Angel Radick at aradick@sherman.edu. CVs for co-authors listed in the abstract must also be submitted. Each CV should include educational background and other scholarly accomplishments.
- Each abstract undergoes a peer-reviewed process.
- Presenter registration cost is $149 for the conference plus $99 for CE credits, if desired. Registration opens June 1, 2020. Non-presenter registration cost is reduced through September 11 to $249 for DCs and $69 for non-DCs (regular price $299 and $99, respectively) plus an optional $99 for CE credits.
